

MIX

Freedom in experimenting to create unique spaces. Contamination in Mix by Isla Tiles is the aesthetic take of a conscious design featuring an evolved vibe. The new collection brings together porcelain stoneware surfaces with different effects, created using cutting-edge technology. The result is natural materials, high-quality design and excellent performance.

Mix features four material effects, apparently contrasting yet able to harmonize: wood, marble, stone and metal coexist and contaminate each other within environments with multiple stylistic notions. The wood-look surprises with the realism of the wide grain characteristic of warm and welcoming oak, while it enchants with the glossy beauty of marble, a modern and trendy brushed ceramic surface. The dynamic and evocative style of stone, with green shades, and the bold and stunning look of oxidized metal complete the collection, enhanced by two decorations: Floreale and Felce.

Thanks to the wide range of available sizes varied and personalized installation layouts may be created: from a classic wood-look slat in two sizes, up to the complementary 60x120 cm and 60x60 cm.

Mix is an articulated collection, featuring several types of surfaces conveniently at your fingertips, suitable for enhancing any kind of space, both residential and commercial, with an eclectic and contemporary style.
